Grave no. 7 of Simon James Cooper

A brave little boy, who loved T.V's 'Fireman Sam'

Grave no. 9 of Robert Skoulding

A railway man for 45 years, both in Norfolk and Suffolk, also permanent signalman at Reedham Swing-bridge for many years.

Grave no. 10 of Shona Alison Carey

*Her epitaph:
'The smile is like a flowered spray
of mint and flowers of blue'.*

The following verses are from a poem, called 'The true palm of my hand', written by Shona Carey when she was 10 years old:

*Four single lines flow across my palm,
Sewing threads of skin
Like a string of beads so calm
As a dream that likes to spin.*

*There's different patterns to different shapes,
Like crystalised drops of rain,
Like a spit of dark blue ink
Will sink to my blood and stain.*

*The smile is like a showered spray
Of mint and flowers of blue,
Which turns into patterns on my thumb,
And whispers a silent clue.*

*Dancing velvet is in my mind,
But it's true it is hair lying still,
Crying echoes of wispy silk
Gives me a crying chill.*

Shona Carey, 10 years.

Grave no.20 of Derek Stephen Pond

For many years the stonemason for Reedham and villages around. The quality of his stonemasonry work was of the highest standard. His headstone depicts the tools of his trade, a hammer and chisel.

Grave no. 22 of James (Jimmie) Webb

A man who would never be seen without his bike and his dog.

Grave no.45 of Liam Anthony Smith

A young lad - suddenly taken - who loved playing football.
